

Is it possible to connect a DVD burner to a video recorder such as the Kodak Playsport?

I found my answer, I'm providing the information here in case it helps someone else:

I found a DVD burner that can be connected to a digital camcorder. This will allow a person to burn a video directly to a DVD without a computer.

However, the DVD burner I found is only compatible with certain models and the Playsport and other small Flip-type cameras are not compatible.

Personally, I've decided that it's easier for me to purchase an older model camcorder that can record directly to DVD's without a computer. (newer models don't seem to have this feature anymore).
